ACADEMIC EXPERIENCES

Teaching Experiences:

Department of Business Administration, University of Piraeus
Professor of International Business, 5/2000- 9/2015; only for graduate and doctoral learning 9/2015 to present:

- Undergraduate courses taught for the Department of Business Administration are: International Business; ERP (enterprise resource planning) within its Global Context; Special Topics in International Business; Business Ethics. Also, team taught with Professors Leonidas Chitiris and Manolis Kondylis are the courses Principles of Management and Human Resources which are offered to all BA students as well as to a variety of Departments at the University of Piraeus where the courses are an electives. Of particular interest are the following observations:
 - The course International Business is of particular significance since it is taught once every Fall and draws annually hundreds of students from the Department of Business Administration, but also from other Departments where it is offered as a service course. About forty percent of these students are separated in 5-member teams. This experience has been presented in the article "Teaching International Business in 'Mega'

Classes: A Case Studies,” Journal of Teaching in International Business, Volume 15 (Number 3), 2004, pages 61-77. For the purposes of this course the student association Students in International Business (SIB) had been organized (2001-2008) offering annual conferences and other events. Also, four annual awards were given primarily to the students of this course, as AHEPA Award of Excellence. This experience was presented at 2007 Annual Meetings of the Association for Global Business, in Washington, D.C. The article “How to Add Philosophy Dimensions in Your Basic International Business Course,” Journal of Teaching in International Business, Volume 21 (Issue 3), July-September 2010, pages 189-199 outlines an approach adding to this course self-actualization perspectives of the global manager. Purpose-specific conferences under the title “The Global Manager: Self Actualization Perspectives” were added to this class in 2009, 2010 and 2011 in order to supplement the technocratic knowledge with in depth understanding of the philosophical dilemmas that faces the student graduating from this class. Cds outlining these conferences, related speeches, conference proceedings and the respective class experience, prepared by the students and presented through corporate sponsoring, are available at JT’s web site. During 2013-2014 and 2014-2015 academic years undergraduate students organized and taught these conferences, in English.

- The International Business class is also taught in English for the Erasmus, mostly undergraduate European, students.
- The course of Special Topics in International Business, consisting of a series of in-depth projects, has resulted in student development and presentation of their work in events of significant academic stature, like the National Conference of the Hellenic Society of Systemic Studies or the Annual meetings of the Association for Global Business.
- Undergraduate course occasionally is taught for the Department of Banking and Finance: Business Ethics.
- Graduate courses taught for the Department of Business Administration are: (a) Human Resources in a Multinational TQM Environment for the MBA-TQM; (b) International Business for the Executive MBA; (c) Business Ethics and Principles of Corporate Governance for the full-time MBA.
- Graduate course taught for the Department of Maritime Studies: International Business, Corporate Social Responsibility and Human Resources.
- Professional courses offered in tandem with the Hellenic Society of Systemic Studies: (a) International Business and (b) Business Ethics (fall 2009 to present).
- MBA theses supervision and participation as a member of committees.

- Supervision of doctoral students and participation in doctoral committees.

University of Peloponese in coordination with the University of Athens (Kalamata), Department of Philosophy, graduate course on Labor Ethics (11/2010 to present).
